Building a Culture of Change Management and Strategy Activation in Your Organization

Change is an inevitable aspect of any organization's journey, and its success often hinges on how well the culture adapts to it. Our new cross-functional interest group focused on Leadership, Change Management, and Strategy Activation kicked off on January 26th with an event emphasizing culture's critical role in the success of change initiatives, underlining the importance of employee engagement, transparency, and effective communication. Many thanks to UWEBC Member companies Fiskars and Schneider National for sharing their compelling stories.

This inaugural event highlighted the significance of a strong organizational culture in change management. Employees who feel a high sense of connection to their workplace are more likely to embrace change when they see leaders modeling the desired culture. To sustain any change, it is crucial to measure results continually, ensuring that the organization is moving in the right direction.

Our next Cross-Functional Interest Group event will be held on February 13 on the topic Agile Tools for Cross-Functional Collaboration: Enhancing Visibility and
